The don of dance music, the DJ's DJ of choice, the man every club dweller and festival raver wants to see stood at the foot of the mixer - living legend, Carl Cox is the inimitable presence that's been taking audiences around the world to a higher plane for nigh on forty years.

The loveable, larger than life character, who began spinning records at family functions at the tender age of just sixteen years old, has come a long way since acquiring his first set of decks, at a time when house music first began to take hold here in the UK.

Abandoning a career in scaffolding - thank the stars - to pursue his passion for music, Cox quickly got to grips with the tricks of his new trade, excelling as a selector, mixer and, eventually, a producer. He earned himself a solid reputation on London's underground dance scene, before rising rapidly through the ranks and onto the international stage, where he's subsequently achieved more than he probably ever imagined possible.

From being one of the most successful radio shows in music history, on Global Radio, which also ran for sixteen years and at its peak had over seventeen million weekly listeners, to playing headline sets at the likes of Glastonbury, Parklife and Creamfields, and performing inside the UK Houses of Parliament - Cox is, as we're sure you're all more than aware, much more than just your run of the mill electronic artist. Oh yes, oh yes - he's an icon. An institution even. A name that will live on perpetually, continuing to influence the future of dance music for decades to come.

Carl Cox - Facts and Trivia:

Back in 1999, on the eve of the new millennium on December 31st, Carl Cox quite literally broke the limitations of time to welcome in the new year not once, but twice.

Starting off on Australia's Bondi Beach, performing live and counting down to the year 2000, the accustomed jet setter then jumped on a plane, flew back over the international dateline and several time zones to appear on stage for the second millennia event, on Hawaii's Kakaako Waterfront Beach. Mind blown.
