Art: Gabriel Barcia-Colombo The Neon Museum's 2021 Artists in Residence focuses their mixed-media work on collections, memorials, and our digital impressions, and simulation of the sacred His performance at Juhl Las Vegas follows the same trend. "We live in a kind of hyper-reality through technology, media and digital space that questions our perceptions of truth, memory and history," Barcia-Colombo said in a statement about the show. "How does technology change our perception of reality? What kind of digital remains will we leave behind? Does actual personal experience matter, or is documenting an experience equally valid?" This weekend is your last chance to catch up simulation In which he uses neon, digital technology and Mexican folk art—including sculptures inspired by the signs in the Neon Museum collection, as well as the digital Nicho Box—to tackle those questions. Music: Silk Sonic We can't think of a better funk match made than Silk Sonic. After Anderson. In 2021 Pak and Bruno Mars teamed up, releasing "Leave the Door Open", a velvet offering straight out of an episode soul train, That song led the pair to the 63rd Annual Grammy Awards, where they performed for the first time. "Leave the Door Open" went on to rule the urban airwaves, spending two weeks in the top 10 at number 1 and 18. More recently, Pak and Mars reclaimed their No. 1 spot with "Smokin' Out the Window", a funky tune about a difficult woman who has to both pay her bills and walk the streets. inspired to Catch them in all their retro glory this week or on any of their other dates through May. at 9 pm, February 25-26, March 2, $125+, Dolby Live, ticketmaster.com,

Sport: Rock 'n' Roll Marathon Keep your peace now or forever. The Rock 'n' Roll Marathon, one of the largest running marathon series in the country, returns to Las Vegas this month, with a half marathon, 10K and, for the first time, a 5K distance challenge. The marathon will take rock star runners under the glitz of Las Vegas Boulevard and the neon lights of downtown. There's little chance of getting bored with a scene like this, but on-course live entertainment will also be on site to keep people motivated and ready to run.
